The Planning Center, at the forefront of sustainable planning and design since its inception in 1985, strives to create the framework for environmental protection, social enrichment, and economic viability in all its projects. This is accomplished through an understanding of the LEED® certification process combined with a commitment to fiscal achievability. Whether a +1,000-acre master planned community or a 10-acre commercial project, its LEED® accredited design professionals combine their understanding of the natural and built environments with the most current innovations in green practices. The goal is to provide the greatest benefit possible to the clients, the community, and the environment.
